ABOUT ME

I am Saloni Aryal, a final-year BSIT student at King's College with a passion for teamwork, communication, and problem solving. I enjoy working in collaborative environments where ideas are shared and teams work together to achieve meaningful outcomes. Through academic projects and practical experiences, I have developed strong coordination, analytical, and interpersonal skills. I am eager to learn new technologies, adapt to challenges, and contribute positively to projects while growing professionally in the technology field. I am particularly interested in working with data, technology systems, and quality processes that help organizations make accurate and reliable decisions
